

TIMELINE OF VIZSLA AND VCA “FIRSTS”

The Vizsla (a Hungarian word that means “pointer”) is considered one of the oldest known hunting dogs. Selectively bred by Hungarian noblemen over the centuries, the breed was near extinction after two World Wars. After World War II, the first Vizslas were imported in the United States and became part of the foundation stock with the American Kennel Club. The Vizsla is a superior canine companion— devoted family friend and versatile in all areas of canine competition. Originally used to hunt with falcons in ancient times, the breed today not only produced the first AKC Triple Champion, but also the first Quintuple Champion in AKC history. It is one of the top three breeds used by the Transportation Security Administration (TSA), worked in Search and Rescue at 9/11, and is used successfully in Seeing Eye programs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mihalyi of Omaha, Nebraska, noted portrait artist, was responsible for Panni XV being saved from the Russian armies. Read her account of helping save the Vizsla (<http://www.vcaweb.org/download/MihalyiPiece1954.pdf>)
